GETS VERY LATEST WAR NEWS

Even These in Heart of Dark Continent Not Ignorant of Events. LONDON, May 29 .- A British explorer, now in Bangui, French Africa, sends an account of the manner in which the latest news from the Euro-pean war theaters reaches him in the heart of the Dark Continent.

For the small sum of $1 a month the wireless telegrams of the Havas Agency are distributed to subscribers half an hour after their reception. Of course, those of us who live in the interior have to send messengers to Bangui to fetch our copies.

"There are two telegraph routes, one via North Africa and the other via Daker, on the west coast, so that, even when the elephants and giraffes carry off the wires around their necks or upset the iron standards by rubbing themselves against them, or when a tornado delays the wireless, we still receive war news by the alternative route. Of course, it sometimes happens that nature and creation combine to disconnect temporarily both routes. But we have an army of intelligent nature. Retail Merchants Meet.

The Retail Merchants' Association, at last night's meeting, discussed and passed upon several important measures. One of these was to provide noonday luncheons for the merchants to be given once a month at one of the hotels. This for the purpose of getting the merchants together socially and for informal business and better acquaintance talks. Another was the formado delays the wireless, we still receive war news by the alternative route. Washington, N. C., who is department sponsor, is registrar and ex-president f Pamlico Chapter, U. D. C. Her father was too young to enter the Confederate army, but she is a granddaughter of Judge Edward Jenner Warren, who signed the ordinance of secession at Raleigh, May 20, 1861, and a grandniece of Herbert C. Warren, who was an officer in the Third Alabama Regiment, serving in Virginia two years. He was wounded at Malvern Hill and in the battle of the Wilderness, and was killed instantly at Gadsden, Ala., while acting as as-sistant adjutant-general on General Wheeler's staff, Hood's Army, on its retreat from Atlanta. Miss Myers is a young woman of rare charm, grace and beauty, and is one of North Carolina's most prominent and attractive daughters.

Miss Lulie Drew Barham, of New soms, Va., and Miss Sallie May Tillman, of Trenton, S. C., are maids of honor for the department. Miss Barham is the daughter of Joseph L. Barham, who was a member of Company A, Thirteenth Virginia Cavalry, Beale's Brigade, W. H. F. Lee's Division, and who served throughout the War Between the States, and who on one occasion was commended for bravery by General William Mahone. He was one of the few ex-Confederate soldiers who served as a member of Virginia's last Constitutional Convention. Miss Barham is well known in Richmond, and her popularity is already assured by her delightful personality. Miss Tillman, the youngest daughter of United States Senator and Mrs. Benjamin R. Tillman, has just completed a course at a Southern college, and is noted for her wit and vivacity. While her father was too young for service in the war, members of his family rendered conspicuous and distinguished service to the Confederate army.
